Responsible business 2023
A force for positive change

23 February 2023

Welcome to responsible business

Businesses roles and responsibilities are evolving in response to unprecedented geopolitical threats and rising stakeholder expectations. There is a compelling case for corporate leaders to adopt a more sustainable and responsible approach, particularly in conflict-affected and high-risk areas.

Simultaneously, the environment, social and governance (ESG) agenda is growing in momentum. Reporting requirements are moving from voluntary to mandatory, a global baseline for sustainability disclosures practice is in the pipeline and questions on whether ESG is fit for purpose in its current state remain at-large.

Now in its 7th year, the 2023 Responsible business conference will analyse emerging trends influencing the profit with purpose agenda. It will explore opportunities for governments, the private sector and civil society to collaborate and create effective alliances to drive positive change.

Convening in the historic Chatham House building, the conference will bring together sustainability leaders, the finance community, policymakers and NGOs.

We look forward to welcoming you for a day of interactive panel discussions and networking opportunities, as well as in person exclusive spotlight sessions held under the Chatham House Rule.

Please let me know if you require any assistance registering.

Sincerely,
Ellie Macmillan-Fox
