

Global Governance Fellowships (10 month in-residence fellowship opportunities at Chatham House)

**If you wish to apply for the Robert Bosch Stiftung Academy Fellowship \(Central & Eastern Europe and Africa\) or the Dame DeAnne Julius Senior Academy Fellowship in International Economics, please refer to the instructions laid out on the individual webpages.*

This year, the Academy is seeking candidates who would like to contribute to our work on the promise and challenge of Global Governance in the 21st Century. Our Academy Fellows will spend 10 months at Chatham House immersing in our Leadership Programme and contributing to high level research, benefiting from close working relationships with our research teams.

International and regional institutions and norms are being challenged on multiple fronts – for failing to be inclusive, for contributing to inequality and cultural dislocation, for failing to recognise the status of emerging powers, and for providing an inadequate response to transnational security, health, and environmental threats.

To apply for our 2019-20 Academy Fellowships, we ask that you propose a research project. Your proposal should consider how your country or region has been affected - positively or negatively - by aspects of global governance. For example, you might ask: What influence have international organisations (or any single IO) had on your country or region? In what ways can international organisations help your country or region confront the challenges it faces? What are the lessons for rules-based international organisations from dealings with your country/region? How is your country/region conforming to/straying from norms of rules-based governance?

Fellows are strongly encouraged to consider our existing research programmes and develop a research proposal that seeks to make a direct contribution to our work on specific topics and regions and to link this to the challenge of regional and global governance.

Below you can browse by fellowship and see some possible topics for research projects. These are only suggestions and you may also propose a related topic of your choosing.

Possible project topics may include:

- Are existing institutions for managing the global economy fit for purpose?
- What lessons can be learned for regional governance from the political and economic challenges the EU has faced over the last decade?
- How can inclusive, sustainable growth and accountable governance be achieved in Africa?
- Is a state-centric approach to the Arab world sufficient or will regional dynamics require a different set of mechanisms for effective governance?
- What are the implications of rapid growth in the Asia-Pacific region for regional and global governance?
- What are the broader implications of Asia's rise - particularly China's significance - for global governance and the international rules-based system?
- What innovative regional and global solutions are there for responding to the refugee crisis and the contemporary politics surrounding immigration?
- What global strategies will be most effective for responding to challenges such as antimicrobial resistance and climate change?

- What global and national governance strategies can ensure effective health coverage at the national level?
- What governance strategies are most effective for ensuring that international organisations incorporate the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG)s?
- How can governments and non-state actors deliver good governance and security in Russia and the Eastern Partnership countries?
- Given the constraints imposed by its domestic politics, how can the United States most productively engage in the mechanisms and institutions of global governance?
